Steady Rain Halts Removal Storm Debris

Cape Girardeau Goes About Burial Of Its 21 Dead

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., May 24 (AP)—A cold, steady rain held down on Cape Girardeau today, halting efforts to rebuild homes destroyed in Saturday night's tornado.

The weather, however, did not force cancellation of several funerals scheduled for this afternoon.

Meanwhile, city officials have requested that their congressional representative, Paul C. Jones, obtain a congressional appropriation of between $25,000 and $30,000 to help clean up the city.

Officials estimated it would take four to five weeks to remove the debris. They said 25 or 30 men would be needed for the job.

An appeal was issued early today for bulldozers and power saws.

Scenes of the persons injured in the tornado remained in hospitals today. Scores of homeless people were being cared for by the Red Cross.

By the Associated Press
Ten states counting 14 dead, swept up the debris of storms and tornadoes today as cooler weather brought over a large share of the relief.

The dead from storms stood at 44 in Missouri, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

Cooled temperatures in the early morning hours was Pennsylvanian, N. D., with 21 below zero.

Possibility That Congress May Adjourn by Last of July

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Lucas and after a White House conference today, it will be impossible for Congress to act on President Truman's national health program at this session.

As for an end of the civil rights program, Lucas told reporters, "I just don't know."

At the same time Lucas said he thinks President Truman is "definitely satisfied" with the progress being made on the legislative program he submitted to Congress in January.

"We are going to have a pretty good record by the time of adjournment," he said.

Lucas said there is a possibility of adjournment by July 31.

Lucas had been to the White House for the regular weekly conference that President Truman has with the Democratic congressional leaders.

House Speaker Rayburn, who came out with him, agreed that Congress possibly can quit by the end of July.

Both asserted, however, that if no legislation is not finished with "must" measures by then, we'll go right on in to August.

Extension of the reciprocal trade program.

2. Repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

3. Approval of the North Atlantic Pact.

Lucas and Rayburn said the possibility of a special session of Congress has not been discussed with the President.

Check on Missing Uranium

Senate-House Group Also Making Inquiry Into Worker's Loyalty

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The atomic energy commission's own security officers filched two bars of uranium from the Hanford, Wash., atomic plant and kept them for months without detection, it was disclosed today.

This story of a test of security loopholes was given to a Senate subcommittee on the committee's own security officers.

The committee also was told that an ABC decision last fall in favor of shipping isotopes—radioactive matter—to countries around the perimeter of Russia was taken over the objections of one member.

Important Events In World News

BERLIN, May 24 (AP)—U. S. Rep. Frank L. Howley gave an ultimatum to Soviet-employed railway police to withdraw from all American sector railway stations in Berlin today.

The police were given until 7 p. m. (11 a. m. EST) to comply. Howley said that if the police did not withdraw, he would ask the Soviet government to expel the police from all allied sectors.

British and French officials refused yesterday to endorse Howley's proposal that the Soviet-controlled railway guards be expelled from all allied sectors.

The matter of the railway police was denounced by both the anti-Communist and the anti-Soviet groups in the city.

Arranging For Flower Show

There has been much activity by the members of the Sedalia Garden Clubs today with many of them at the "Convention Hall," busy planning for the annual Flower Show which will be held Wednesday afternoon and evening from 1:00 to 10:00 o'clock.

Tables are being set up and covered with white paper for the exhibits and in various corners of the hall are being arranged such as the tea garden, the bird corner, and various other attractive settings in the center will be a garden in which may be found all of the newest things for the garden.

There will also be the Junior Garden Display. This organization won four blue ribbons at the recent state convention at Cape Girardeau.

At the convention Mrs. C. A. Johnson and her committee spent the day taking entries of the exhibitors.

The public is invited to attend the Flower Show during the afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Frank S. Leach is chairman with Mrs. Fred Kueck as co-chairman.

Maybe if Your Feet Itch It's Nervous Nelly or Jumpy Jack

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Just because your feet itch, it's no sign that you have athlete's foot. Maybe your feet itch because you're a Nervous Nelly or a Jumpy Jack.

Such an itch, however, is not an insect bite or burr on your foot, and it's not a sign of a poor relation as it is often thought.

Leather Lightweights

Lightweight leather makes compact summer bags. A patent envelope (left) is styled with outside pocket to accommodate sun-glasses. Soft calf (right) has double basket handles for easy carrying.

By Espie Knard
NEA Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (NEA)—Leather handbags can match weight lifting with summer carry-alls of straw and fabric.

"The woman who elects leather for her sturdy bag can pick one of patent as flat as an envelope or one of calf which has also been freed of burdensome metal and wood.

Soft, lightweight calf makes compact bags which designer Richard Koret has given taut, firm contours without the aid of wooden underpinnings. A big help in carrying the load which a woman will add to this bag is a double basket handle.

B. McQuiddy, of Chicago, Ill., was best man. Ushers were Clark Lechert, Byron White, C. R. McNally, Jr., and Jack Campbell. Cadet Rolla R. Hinkle, Jr., and Cadet Bill McQuiddy, of NMML, lighted the candles.

"The bride's mother was attired in a slender crepe gown in Chitau blue shade, trimmed in iridescent lavender hat was trimmed in blue forget-me-nots and tiny pink flowers. She wore a spray of small orchids. Mrs. McQuiddy, mother of the groom, wore a grey crepe gown with a pink flower-trimmed hat. Her flowers were small pink roses. Mrs. A. M. Fell of Greenville, Pa., maternal grandmother, was in rose crepe with flowered hat and Mrs. J. E. Hinkle, paternal grandmother, wore beige crepe, matching hat, flower-trimmed. Both had corsages of pink rosebuds.

"A large reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Guests were received by the bride's mother and father, the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. McQuiddy, parents of the groom, and the bride's attendants. The rooms of the house were elaborately decorated with bowls of calla lilies, and the bride's table in the dining room was centered with a lovely arrangement of the same flowers. Tall cream-colored candles in silver holders lighted the table, where a tall four-tiered wedding cake, decorated with sugar-spun calla lilies and tiny birds, was cut and served, in traditional manner by the bride, assisted by the groom. Later the cake was served by the bride's aunts, Mrs. Max Coll and Mrs. Arthur Farnsworth, while another aunt, Mrs. Clarence Hinkle, presided at the punch bowl.

"Mrs. Henry Samson assisted in the house as did Mrs. Floyd Childress. Mrs. John I. Hinkle showed the gifts in the basement living room. Guests departed by the way of the garden where another punch table was set up under the trees. Mrs. I. J. Marshall, assisted by Mrs. Rowan Robinson, Mrs. Robert Beck, Mrs. Robert Walton and Miss Dorothy Reese Fletcher, served. Mrs. E. Y. Chambers and Mrs. W. B. Rogers greeted the guests and Mrs. Stanley Lodewick registered them in a white satin-bound wedding book. All were in formal attire, and wore fresh blossoms.

"The bride and groom left immediately for a motor trip to Las Vegas, Nev., and points in California. For going away the bride changed to a three-piece suit of chalk beige gabardine, with which she wore accessories in terra cotta color, and a small hat of cinnamon brown, trimmed in green changeable taffeta ribbon, and a tiny velvet rose of terra cotta shade. Her corsage was of Tullman roses.

"The bride who was graduated from Goucher college, Baltimore, Md., last June, is the granddaughter-

Hal Boyle Says

By Hal Boyle
 NEW YORK—(AP)—More people take their own lives in a cold war than a hot war.

This truth of history is emphasized by the death of the nation's first Secretary of Defense—James Forrestal.

He is the third major statesman in the post-war world to kill himself. The others were John G.
 Winant, former ambassador to Britain, and Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia.

Forrestal, Winant, . . . Mas-aryk . . . why did they do it?
 It is always a ripple on the commonplace when men in high places destroy themselves.

Why did they kill themselves?
 All were well-to-do, respected, and seemingly had much to live for. They were three men with three different philosophies of life.
 They all traveled different roads, but the roads ended up at the same blank wall.

Forrestal was an investment banker and a realist. Masaryk was a cultured and cosmopolitan ac-phile. Winant was an idealist.

But the realist, the sophisticated and the idealist all turned to suicide as the only way out of their problems.

In the cases of Winant and For-restal their deaths were officially blamed on overwork. Masaryk is thought to have killed himself when he realized he and his country were orphans of a foreign power. And some believe, of course, that Masaryk didn't go out his castle window under his own power. They think he was push-

Buried Redwoods
 Not all of California's giant redwood trees are above the ground.
 Time and time again, forests of these giants of the plant world grew up, only to be covered with volcanic ash and lava, and now lie buried deep in the soil.

A new type of hearing has been introduced whereby a rotating shaft is suspended in air by magnets, so that it touches no surface as it spins. First application of the "floating-shaft" principle was in a wait-hour meter, the familiar device that keeps a record of electricity brought into a home.

Reward to Honor Graduate

Miss Alberta M. Carver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A.
 Carver, of 904 East Eleventh street, recent honor graduate, received a Medical Staff Award of $75.00 as third prize at the Graduation exercises of the Missouri Baptist Hospital School of Nursing in St. Louis. Eight honor students in each of three classes received awards ranging from $50.00 to $100.00. These annual gifts of recognition are made possible by voluntary contributions from members of the medical staff of the hospital.

The awards came as a complete surprise to Miss Carver and the other student nurses. In presenting the awards to the ranking students in each class, Dr. A. H.

trying to take your life. In wartime the enemy is. And the more he seeks your life the more you want to keep it—if only through pure stubbornness. The mere fact he is after it makes you put a higher value on it.

Another reason fewer people commit suicide in wartime is that life has a common aim, and people have more of a we-are-all-together feeling. They are also more unselfish.

Faith Gives Purpose
 Long ago Henry Thoreau wrote that most men "lead lives of quiet desperation." But as long as they know they are needed and wanted, they go on living, desperate or not.

Any goal or faith gives life a purpose. This is why deeply religious people are less likely to kill themselves than those less religious. And it is people who believe why fewer women commit suicide than men. Women know their purpose in life better than men.

Husband Mistaken For A Prowler Is Shot
 NEVADA, Mo., May 24—(AP)— Claude Ellis is in the Nevada hospital because of his wife's accusation with a gun.

Ellis, who lives on a farm north late Saturday night. Mrs. Ellis thought he was a prowler trying to get into the house. With bravery she got a gun and with equal accuracy neatly pinked the "in-

Keeping in Close Touch With Chinese Situation

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP London News Analyst

There likely will be some heart burning but need be no surprise to anyone Secretary of State Dennison has this ruled out at least for the present any American participation in a Pacific defense pact similar to the Atlantic treaty.

The condition in which the Atlantic Alliance is built are quite different from those existing in the Orient. The secretary took note of that fact yesterday when he told a new conference in Washington.

While it is true that there are serious dangers to world peace existing in the situation in Asia, it is also true, as Prime Minister Chamberlain said in the press the other day, that a Pacific defense pact could do little to help until present internal conflicts in Asia were resolved.

A Great Threat

In the first place the Atlantic treaty covers a theater which represents the greatest immediate threat to the western democratic world, the Orient in due course may present an even greater menace, a fact which we must certainly not ignore. However, since we already have made a pact in Europe that may be our main immediate concern.

Then, too, the Atlantic treaty covers a compact front and not a far more formidable defense. While many of its members are weak militarily yet by and large they are at peace internally. There is no civil war in any of them.

Differed Picture in Orient

The picture in the Orient is quite different. Many of the countries in that huge area are being revolutionized. China, Burma, Malaya, Indochina, a third of them, of course, is China with its population of five hundred million. As Secretary Acheson points out the dangers of Asia are those resulting from the present condition of that country.

It is, would you apply a defense pact to such a hotbed of violence and potential violence. What wouldn't Uncle Sam be signing him off in for to be held a mutual defense pact with such an aggregation? It strikes me likely would shut him out in the problem of the Tibetan warlike Angles of ancient days.

Son of Earth

Austria was the son of earth and none could tell the way him because he gained fresh strength every time he touched his mother. Along came Hitler how ever and conquered the Thysons by hitting him up so he couldn't touch earth at all.

Like him our Uncle Sam might soon find himself hoisted by Pacific defense pact.

So much for the formal commitment of a defense pact. If America or Britain or any other western power wants to give its aid to an Asian country that is different story. Such aid would have dropped on it a defense pact. Another thing associated in a vast thicket of himself would might produce ails for help for several points at once.

Returned to only a Pacific defense pact, the lack of help in that vast area. Contrary Secretary Acheson said that the United States and Britain are keeping in close touch with Chinese developments.

Conservationists are working hard to save the sandhill crane from extinction. The bird stands almost as tall as a man and presents an excellent target for the hunter. Its flesh is very palatable and often has been bootlegged as turkey.

Amplifiers in the future will be controlled by the under-wing fueling system. The intake vents of the fuel tanks open under the wing, and all the service man needs to do is stand on a low platform to get his filling line into place.

WASHINGTON, May 21 (The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round) — The committee voted with Van and Noblad so Gen. Vaughan will have to wait before he can wear his coveted badge.

Note — It is significant that the army sent the House armed services committee a detailed private list of officers, telling why each medal was awarded. In most cases some act of heroism or patriotism was cited. But opposite Vaughan's name was written: "The department of the army has no information on this."

Ambassador Douglas' Secret Letter

History sometimes hinges on little things. If it had not been for a telephone call just a little more than six months ago, another man would be in Paris today representing the United States at the most important diplomatic conference since Potsdam.

That man is Lewis Douglas, ambassador to Great Britain, former head of Mutual Life Insurance and inheritor of one of the great American copper fortunes. Few people know that only a phone call prevented his becoming secretary of state.

That phone call was placed by Louis Johnson, then chairman of the Truman finance committee and in desperate need of funds. Johnson called Douglas early in the morning in Paris where he was attending a United Nations meeting, got him out of bed and told him that the Democrats were scrapping the bottom of the campaign barrel. They needed money and needed it badly. Truman had given Douglas the highest plum in the entire field of diplomacy and now Truman needed help in return.

Ambassador Douglas listened sleepily, replied that he had no money to spare. Later, when he was fully awake and back in London he thought it over again and wrote Johnson a letter. But he still had no money to spare. Truman at that time was according to all the polls, a long shot. He had no more chance of winning than Norman Thomas. But Douglas did not put it on that ground. He put it on the ground of poverty and the fact that he was serving in a non-political job — probably the first time in history that the ambassadorship to London was classed as non-political.

After Truman's astounding world by winning in November, he looked around for a new secretary of state and knowing nothing about the money-making phases of the campaign, hit upon Douglas. In fact he was about to appoint Douglas — when suddenly Louis Johnson walked into the White House with a copy of Douglas' letter in his pocket.

Truman read Douglas' plea of poverty. He knew Douglas' family had developed some of the wealthiest copper mines in Arizona. He knew Douglas' father was named for his grandfather. He knew Douglas had been chairman of the wealthy Mutual Life Insurance company. He dropped the idea of making Douglas secretary of state.

The Fateful Letter

Douglas' letter, which changed one brief chapter in history, is still one of the most secret documents in the files of the Democratic committee, but its text follows:

Dear Louis:

It was early in the morning Paris time when your telephone call came through. I am afraid I talk with you did not appear to be particularly intelligent, for it roused me out of a sound sleep. "I can well understand how great is your need for financial assistance and I am willing to tell you quite candidly precisely what my position is. In the first place, I am a poor

ISLAND OF ESCAPE

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

THE STORY: Few shipwrecked men have been so fortunate as the crew of the "Island of Escape" which landed on a remote island. When Henry Harding was trying to establish a new life on the island, he was helped by the crew of the "Island of Escape" which landed on a remote island. When Henry Harding was trying to establish a new life on the island, he was helped by the crew of the "Island of Escape" which landed on a remote island.

"All right," Miss Cosgrove said amiably. "You want me to help you get breakfast?"

"Drunk or sober I can cook better than you. I can do anything better than you." She had another drink put the bottle down on the dresser and started out. At the doorway she whirled around, refilled her steps quickly and snatched the bottle to her breast. "No you don't!" She went out in a blaze of belligerency.

TONA McGUIRE sat up. "What's a load?" she yawned. "I can see we're going to have a swell breakfast. She ought to give Mollie a vote of thanks for keeping Harding so blind. If he is blind, you're fond of Mollie?" Bea asked.

Nona McGuire laughed. "Really, you have to know dear little Mollie well to love her like I do. Come on and let's get dressed. We might miss something."

Surprisingly enough Lilly had breakfast ready on time. She appeared to have pulled herself together though her breath was a thing of substance and her eyes did not focus very well. Twice when she bent over Henry Harding to serve him Bea waited for an explosion.

Henry Harding kept his eyes fixed on his plate, avoided any direct look at Mrs. Warren. It was Lilly who glowered at him. When the man finished quickly and hurried out, Lilly laughed.

Mumbling to herself she staggered through the swinging door to the kitchen.

BENEATH the main house, passages cut in stone led back into the spacious, subterranean storerooms. Narrow-gauge tracks were laid in the floor and small hand trucks clicked smoothly along them.

At the entrance was the upper terminus of the funicular railway to the dock in the cove below. One gondola-like car five feet long and three wide rested at the tilted platform step. The heavy steel cable attached to its upper end went up and around a huge drum several times before returning down the steep hill to the car at the lower or cove end.

At 10:30 Henry Harding came looking for Bea.

"There're some things I want to send down," he told her. "You can ride down with them."

He pushed a hand truck back into the tunnel, returned shortly with several cases of whiskey. "Give a place to look these up down below."

Bea got in hesitantly and sat down.

"Don't worry now," Harding said. "It's perfectly safe. This lever on the side opens the front end of the gondola. We used it to empty racks in the wharf all. It spills out the load. And you of course."

"What a salesman you'd make for a scenic trip," she muttered. "Suppose the cable breaks?"

"It won't. It never has."

"All right. But just remember I'm not a load of rocks."

The first few feet sloped gently. Bea stifled a yip when it began to gain momentum.

She could see the lower car coming ahead. Lilly Warren sat in it, her head nodding slowly with the motion of the car.

Then Bea saw the red stain down from Lilly's temple. They were abreast when she could see the other side of Lilly's head where the mushrooming bullet had smashed out.

Too late she caught the glint of steel in Lilly's lap. She had only time to recognize her own automatic before the gondola was past.

She twisted around, watched the car and its occupant move up toward the terminal, watched the careless nodding of Lilly's shattered head. She had to finish her trip down.

When the car finally stopped at the very edge of the dock she sat motionless staring down at the water and at the beach beyond.

She saw a wave, bolder than the others, lick up and destroy the huge bare footprint in the sand.

man and not a wealthy man. My lot of duty here has required me to go into my meager store of capital to a very substantial amount. I therefore do not have in my possession the funds with which I can make the sort of a contribution which I expect you want. This is the unvarnished and untainted truth. Moreover, I never have made any substantial contribution to the party for the reasons which I have recited above.

"In the second place, I came to London not because I wanted to come for the title of ambassador holds for me no allurements whatsoever — it never has. It was understood that I would be completely nonpolitical. For this reason, even if I had the funds, it would be a mistake for me to make a contribution to the national committee."

Douglas went on to say that he would give a "modest contribution" to the Democratic state committee in Arizona — which, incidentally did not arrive until the election was over.

All of which is why Lewis Douglas is not in Paris today as secretary of state of the United States.
